The Grocers' Company

A Short Introduction

There are 108 livery companies in the City of London, with the senior livery companies being known as The Great Twelve. The Worshipful Company of Grocers today ranks second in the order of precedence that was established in 1515. Originally known as the Guild of Pepperers, whose earliest records date from 1100, the Grocers' Company was formed as a religious and social fraternity of merchants and moneyers who traded in spices, gold, and other luxury goods from Byzantium and the Mediterranean. Their use on occasion of pepper as a currency gave rise to the expression "peppercorn rent".

The merchants formed a community centred on a church in the City of London that they built in Soper Lane - now Queen Street - and dedicated to St. Antonin. Increasingly, they became involved in the import and export of a variety of goods (especially spices) which they bought and sold 'in gross', changing the name of the guild in 1376 to 'The Company of Grossers of London'. In 1428 King Henry VI granted the Company its first Royal Charter.

The small shopkeepers who retailed the goods bought from the wholesale 'grossers', adopted the name of grocers and the meaning with which we associate it today. Over the centuries, the Grocers' Company lost its close connections with the trade of goods, wholesale and retail, as well as its former function of controlling weights and measures at the Port of London which, since the Great Fire of 1666, has been in the hands of HM Customs and Excise, now HM Revenue and Customs.

Grocers' Hall is in a courtyard just off Princes Street that runs beside the Bank of England. The Company is now in its fifth Hall, all of which have been on the same site since 1426.

Alderman Sir William Laxton, Master of the Company eight times between 1536 and 1552, and Lord Mayor in 1544, re-founded and endowed a free grammar school in his native village of Oundle in 1556. The School was re-established by the Company in 1876 as a development of the original grammar school to provide a classical education but also giving prominence to "modern subjects". In 1930 a Royal Charter of Incorporation was granted to the School and a supplementary Charter was granted in 1977 and amended in 1998. Today, the majority of Governors are appointees of the Grocers' Company, and, normally, the Chairman of the Governing Body is a Past Master Grocer. In addition the Master, Second Warden and Third Warden of the Company serve as ex officio Governors of the School.

The Grocers' Company allows the School to use its crest, which was first used by the Company in 1532. Atop the crest is a camel (walking from east to west) and clothes are on the shield to remind us today of the Company's origins in the spice trade of the Middle Ages.

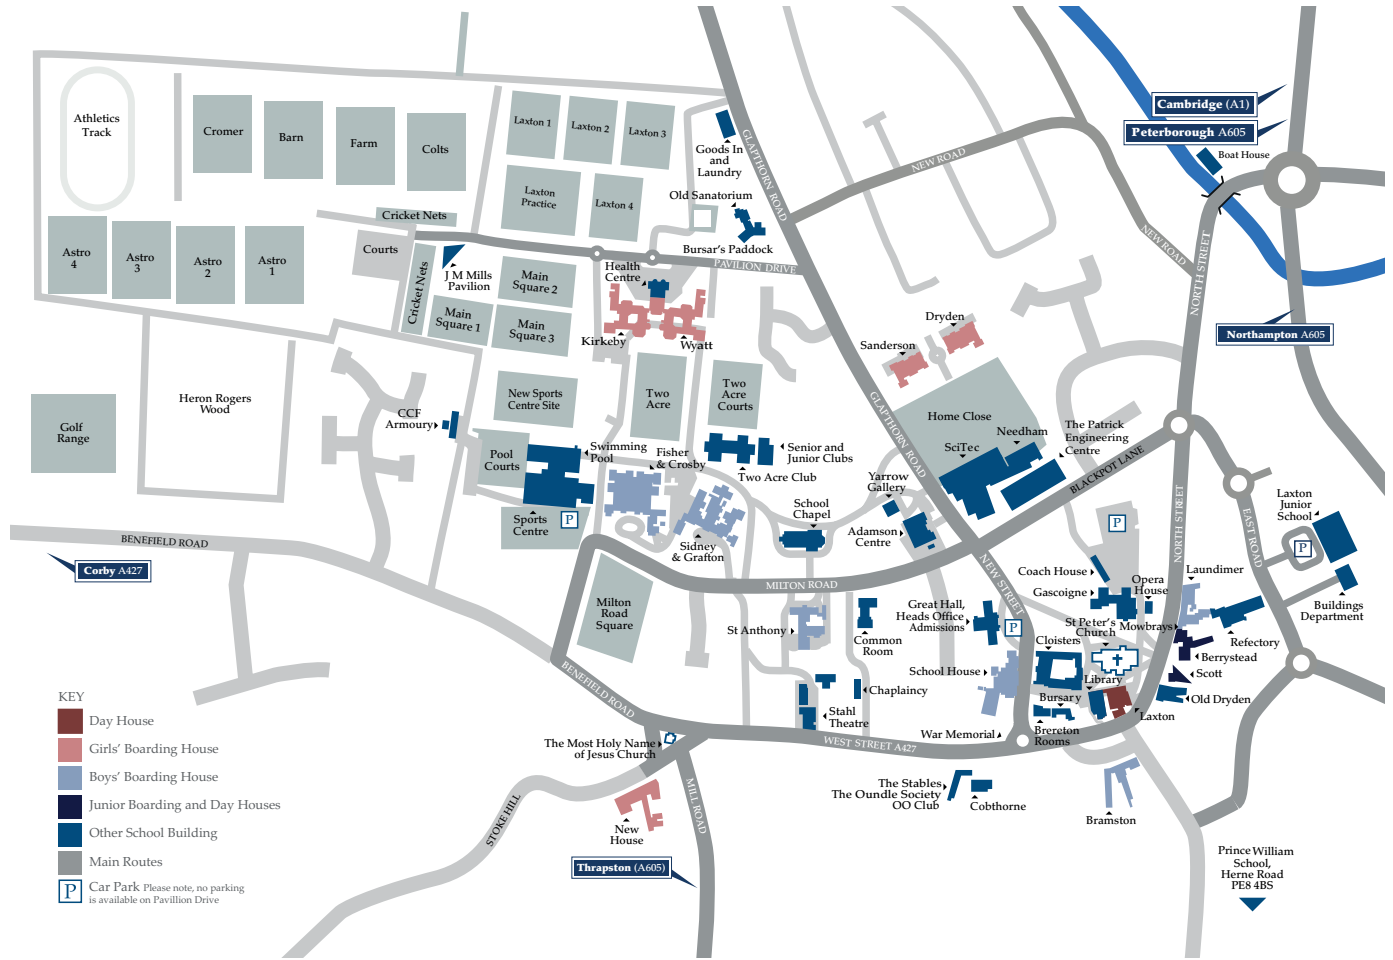

Today, the Company, along with the other Livery Companies, continues to play its role in the daily life of the City of London, in the election of the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs, and it carries on the traditions of one of the ancient fraternities, which, since the Middle Ages, have formed sounding boards of informed responsible opinion.

Over the centuries, a number of significant figures have been members of the Company, including Richard Grafton (the printer of the first Great Bible in English in 1539), Sir William Laxton, King Charles II (whose restoration to the Monarchy was supported by the Company in 1660), King William III (who became Sovereign Master in 1689), Sir John Houblon (who founded the Bank of England in 1694), William Pitt the Younger (who became the youngest British Prime Minister in 1783 at the age of 24) and, more recently in 1953 and 1983 respectively, Queen Elizabeth the Queen Mother and Diana, Princess of Wales became Honorary Freemen.

The Grocers' Company has always given generously to charity, when it means allow. During the past three hundred years, its charitable endeavours, including those related to education and the Church, have been a principal aspect of the Company's activities. While the Company's donations to charity are mainly funded by assigned investments and annual grants from the Company's income, a significant portion relies on regular support from the Liverymen and Freemen (the Company's membership) in the form of donations and Gift Aid.

The Education and Charities Committee is the policy-making body for the Grocers' Charity, the grant-making arm of the Grocers' Company. The Committee establishes broad targets, reviews all the charitable applications, and recommends to the Court of Assistants what the response should be. It is responsible for the provision of bursaries, scholarships and grants to Oundle, and seven other schools with which the Company has historical connections, and for relations with 13 churches of which the Company is patron.

The Company strives to live up to the ideals expressed in its early Ordinances, that it should be 'a nursery of charities and a seminary of good citizens'.
